🎬 Scene 6 | Don't be Afraid [Fear and Desire] 🇬🇧

Fear and Desire is a 1953 American anti-war film directed, produced, and edited by Stanley Kubrick, and written by Howard Sackler. With a production team of only fifteen people, the film was Kubrick's feature directorial debut. Though the film is not about any specific war, it was produced and released during the height of the Korean War.

👨‍🎤 Four soldiers trapped behind enemy lines must confront their fears and desires.

ℹ️ Colorimetric modifications were carried out (Increase in the intensity of white, deeper black, reduction of grain, reduction of sound graying).
